a number of deep wells, also oil & gas wells on their land. Perry & Robert each served during World War Two. Charles was depressed to help his father on farm and with cattle. Jesse & Ethel have retired have a nice home in Rolla Kansas.

Our parents lived a mine east of Richfield at this time. Doradlean was born and died there.
There was a field of volunteer millet across the road north of our home. we children were to go in evenings and pull millet for our hogs. This ~~one~~ evening Jesse just didn't go with us, not noticing any thing about where he was until later. We began to look for Jesse. Father came home from work, and word soon spread,
a little boy was lost, night coming on, people gathered in the search. Father said to mother have you looked in the closet, she had but not deep enough. father began to move the clothes and there lay our little brother sound asleep on the floor. father gathered him in his arms, and cried of
joy. mother laughed until tears ran down her cheeks. The last was found. "Guns fired, boy found."

A good carpenter, worked with a man Ralph Eaton, They were head men in building the Maxwell House in Lamar, also contraction and putting up the big tanks
that supply the City of Lamar with water.

Built the supply tanks at Greeley Colo, that supplied the water at the Camp where the Japanese were held during World War
Two. These were the Japanese, here in U. S. A.
They were in sympathy with their own country. So U. S. A. just put them where they could be watched. (Was very sad in a way to just take them from their homes and places of business, But seemed only way to handle and be safe).

possibilities

This is information from Bill and Lorela Morgan of Conadon, Tex. from their Ball family & others.

Farefather - John Ball of England (1670-1742) took up land on Little Hunting Creek in Stafford Co. Va. in 1695.

John's son Moses Ball Sr. mentioned in General Washington's diary.

Moses Ball Sr. vs. 1717 - his will dated Dec. 15, 1786 requests that the sum of ten pounds that he had borrowed from his excellency - Gen. Washington - be pd. with interest.

Moses Ball Sr.'s son Capt. George Ball and his bro. Lt. James Ball fought in the Amer. Revolution. Descendants of the family moved to Harlan Co. Ky. and from there Carlisle Bablin Ball moved to Grayson Co. Area of Texas.

Page 1 of her book;

The Immigrant Ancestor
Descendants of John Ball (1) believe his father was Richard Ball who m. Elizabeth Finton, dau. of Moses of Norfolk Co. Va.

Historians agree that 6 Ball were. Come to Amer. on the ship "Plonter"

If we are indeed descended from this Richard, then our family lineage would extend back to the halls of Wiltshire, England, thru' William Ball.

Kathryn - I'm wondering if this is the book you mentioned that a woman in Texas was writing on the Ball family?
No - I believe you said that your generation would probably not be in it but our ancestors would -

I have been unable to find any definite connection with our lines in Jon Ball's book so am hoping - there is another book being printed.

Other info. Loreta Morgan shared with me is zeros copies on a "John Ball of Lee Co, Va, and his descendants," Bell Co, Ky, & Harlan Co, ~~W. Va~~, Ky. By William Woodson Hoskins

There are 9 pages of this Includes Moses Ball II family of Harlan Co. Ky.
 many of these names are like ours - John, George, Martha, etc.

I don't have time to read it word
 for word, but have not found the name "Cole" or "Pitman".

If you are interested in more information, than I have sent,
 on any of these names - I will borrow Morgans info. & copy it.

Guess I'll live if we never learn more about our Ball ancestors
 from Va.

As you wrote one time - there are so many Balls - it is rather confusing.

would like to go back further on Pitman etc. also.

Not enough time & I am getting older. Laura S.

To-day I found our Dr. John Woodson in a book at the Canadian Library -

page 75 of the book:

"Immigrant Ancestors"
a List of 2,500 Immigrants to America before 1750

Edited by Frederick Adams Virtus
Pub. by Genealogical Pub. Co. Inc.
Extracted from Volume VII
Compendium of Amer. Genealogy

It is only a brief article - states that Dr. Woodson's wife was Sarah WINSTON and he had graduated from St. John's College at Oxford.

I have added this to the information you had sent me - which was several pages and so very interesting.

L.S.

Kathryn!

Is now Oct. 26-1981 - I promise to get this information mailed to -day - Laura S, first President turned to face the duties his country had imposed upon him. In sight of those who would have made an idol of him, Washington's first act was to seek aid of other strength than his own. In the calm sunshine of that April afternoon, fragrant with the presence of seed-time and the promise of harvest, we leave him on his knees in Old St. Paul's bowed with the simplicity of a child at the feet of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe.

MARY, THE MOTHER.

William Ball the first immigrant of the name and family to Virginia came to the borders of the Rappahannock river in Lancaster county and established the plantation of Millenback. Capt. Joseph, his son, became possessor of the plantation of "Epping Forest" in the same neighborhood. He was married in 1673 to Elizabeth Romney. By her he had five children, Joseph, Elizabeth married to Rev. John Carnegie, Hannah married to Raleigh Travers, Anne married to Col. Edward Conway, and Esther married to Raleigh Chinn. About 1707 or 8 his wife died and he married a second time to the widow Mary Johnson by whom he had one daughter Mary, who from her comeliness was called the rose of Epping Forest. Mary lost her father before she was ten years old. Her mother was again married for the third time to Capt. Richard Hewes whose home was at Sandy Point near the mouth of Yeocomico river in the county of Northumberland. Here in all probability young Mary Ball passed the most of her single years with her mother, and in companionship with her half sister Elizabeth Johnson until March 6, 1739, when she became the wife of Capt. Augustine Washington of Wakefield, Westmoreland county, Va. He died in 1743. His widow Mary remained on the Wakefield homestead until 1775, when at her son George's request she came up to Fredericksburg where she could be very near to her daughter Betty Lewis, wife of Col. Fielding Lewis.

As time passed, her children and grand children made her frequent visits and had care that she wanted for nothing to add to her comfort. The General had repeatedly urged her to make Mount Vernon her home but she always declined his requests.

She passed away Aug. 25, 1789. A granite obelisk 50 feet high with the simple inscription "Mary, the Mother of Washington" was furnished and dedicated to her memory, near her home in 1894. At the dedication of the monument it was said:

"You have reared this beautiful obelisk to one who was 'the light of the dwelling' in a plain rural colonial home. Her history hovers around it. She was wife, mother, and widow. She nursed a hero at her breast. At her knee she trained to the love and fear of God and to the kindly virtues,—honor, truth, and valor, the lion of the tribe that gave to America liberty and independence. This is her title to renown. It is enough.

"Eternal dignity and heavenly grace dwell upon the brow of this blessed mother; nor burnished gold, nor sculptured stone, nor rhythmic praise could add one jot or tittle to her chaste glory. She was simply a private citizen. No sovereign's crown rested on her brow. She did not lead an army, like Joan of Arc, nor slay a tyrant, like Charlotte Corday. She was not versed in letters nor in arts. She was not an angel of mercy, like Florence Nightingale, nor the consort of a hero, like the mother of Napoleon. But for the light that streamed from the deeds of him she bore, we would doubtless have never heard the name of Mary Washington, and the grass upon this grave had not been disturbed by curious footsteps nor reverential hands."—Daniel's Oration.

MARY WASHINGTON.

The Rappahannock ran in the reign of good Queen Anne,
All townless from the mountains to the sea,
Old Jamestown was forlorn and King Williamsburg scarce born—
'Twas the year of Blenheim's victory,
Whose trumpets died away in far Virginia.
In the cabin of an old tobacco farm,
Where a planter's little wife to a little girl gave life,
And the fire in the chimney made it warm.

It was little Mary Ball, and she had no fame at all,
But the world was all the same as if she had;
For she had the right to breathe and to tottle and to teethe,
And to love some other cunning little lad;
Though he proved a widower, it was all the same to her,
For he gave her many a daughter and a son,
And the family was large and the oldest, little George,
Was the hope of little Widow Washington.

The name resounded not in time we have forgot,
It was nothing more than Smith or Jones or Ball;
And George's big half brothers had the call on their stepmother's
Affection, like the babes of her own stall;
They paid the larger taxes, and the Ayletts and Fairfaxes
Received them in their families and lands,
While the widow thought upon it, she rode in her sunbonnet,
Midst her slaves who tilled her gulleys and her sands.

Till they sought to take her George upon the royal barge,
And give him a commission and a crest,
When her heart cried out, "O no! something says he must not go:
My firstborn is a father to the rest."
She could find him little schooling, but he did not learn much fooling.
