FIGHT OF WATERLOO.

BY WALTER SCOTT.

Came the whirlwind—like the last,
But fiercest sweep of tempest blast—Came the whirlwind—steel gleams broke Like lightning through the rolling smoke,
The war was waked anew, Three hundred cannon mouths roar'd loud,
And from their throats, with flush and cloud,
Their showers of iron threw.
Beneath their fire, in full career, Rush'd on the ponderous carriger, The lance couch'd his ruthless spear, And hurrying as to havoc near,
The C. hort's eagle flew.
In one dark torrent broad and strong,
The advancing onset roll'd along, Earth harbing'rd by fierce acclaim, That from the shroud of smoke and flame, Peal'd wildly the imperial name.
But on the British heart were lost The terrors of the changing host;
For not an eye the storm that view'd Chang'd its proud glance of fortitude, Nor was one forward footstep staid,
As dropp'd the dying on the dead, Fast as their ranks the thunders tear, Fast they renew'd each serried square;
And on the wounded and the slain Clos'd their diminish'd files again, Till from their line scarce spears' lengths three.
Emerging from the smoke they see, Helmet and plume and panoply,— Then waked their fire at once!
Each musketeer's revolving knell, As fast, as regularly fell, As when they practice to display Their discipline on f. s. at day, Then down went helm and lance, Down were the eagle banners sent, Down reeling steeds and rivers went, Corslets were pierced, and pennons rent;
And to augment the fray, Wheel'd full against their staggering banks,
The English horsemen's foaming ranks Forced their resistless way.
Then to the musket knell succeeds The clash of swords—the neigh of steeds;
As plies the smith his clanging trade, Against the cuirass rang the blade;
And while amid their close array The well served cannon rent their way, And while amid their scatter'd band Raged the fierce rider's bloody brand Recoil'd in common rout and fear, Lancer and guard and cuirassier, Horsemen and foot—a mingled host, Their leaders fallen, their standards lost,
Then WELLINGTON! thy piercing eye, This crisis caught of destiny.

ORIGIN OF THE ISLAND OF NANTUCKET.

AN INDIAN TRADITION.

On the west end of Martha's Vineyard are high cliffs of variegated colored earths, known by the name of Gay-head. On the top of the hill is a large cavity, which has the appearance of the crater of an extinguished volcano, and there are evident marks of former subterraneous fires. The Indians who lived about this spot have a tradition that a certain deity resided there before the Europeans came into America; that his name was Manshop: that he used to step out on a ledge of rocks which ran into the sea, and take up a wale, which he broiled for his own eating on the coals of the aforesaid volcano, and often invited the Indians to dine with him, or gave them the relicks of his meal. That once to shew their gratitude to Manshop for his very great kindness to them, they made an offering to him of all the tobacco which grew upon the island in one season.— This was scarcely sufficient to fill his great pipe, but he received the present very graciously, smoked his pipe, and turned out the ashes of it into the sea, which formed the island of Nantucket.
Upon the coming of the Europeans into America, Manshop retired in disgust, and has never since been seen.

A person in this town, famous for his ingenuity, discovering a Constable, who held an execution against him, approaching his room, and there being no possibility of avoiding an interview, threw himself upon the floor and feigned himself dead. The officer entered, and after speaking to him and tumbling and turning him over and over again in vain, concluding that a messenger more grim than himself had made a prior attachment, went immediately in pursuit of a Coroner, who forthwith summoned a jury, and marched at their head to the debtor's department; when, lo! the dead man had arisen & was no where to be found.—Bost. Pal.

SOMETHING NOVEL, OR THE DEVIL OUTWITTED.

Some few days since, in the vicinity of a neighboring village, a gentleman wishing to replenish his pocket, hit upon an unheard of expedient to effect his purpose. Dressing himself in all the costume of his Saanic majesty, such as horns, cloven foot, &c. and knowing when a Mr. R.—was to pass on the river, he posted himself in his way; the person was stopped, and saluted by his majesty with a demand for $1000, or suffer the immediate transportation of himself and family to the infernal regions. Mr. R.—after recovering from his surprise, the unavoidable consequence of a visit from so distinguished a personage, and after declaring his inability to comply with the demand at that moment, was suffered to depart under a faithful promise to return the following night, at the same place and hour, and deliver the cash.

Mr. R.—applied to his neighbor to whom he had loaned a sum to that amount, demanding it immediately, well knowing that the exigency would admit of no delay; his neighbor complied with the demand, but insisted upon knowing the cause that induced it so unexpectedly.—Mr. R.—after some hesitation, informed him of his appointment with the Devil; he was seemingly satisfied—and his majesty at the appointed hour was handed the expected sum. The neighbor, however, who it seems had rather more of the marrow of a man, way-laid the pretended Devil, recovered the money and committed him, horns and all, to close confinement in the county prison—emphatically, "giving the Devil his due." Catskill Recorder.

On Sunday night last, a young woman, at Greenwich, about 16 years of age the wife of an apprentice to a mechanic in that village, was safely delivered of three fine boys, all of whom we understand, are in healthy state. The united ages of the father, mother and three sons, do not amount to 37 years.
